PROGRAMME DETAILS

1 June 2005

On Midweek this week:-

CHARITA JONES

Charita Jones is an ex-gospel singer and now runs Momma Cherri's Soul Food Shack, a restaurant serving the home-cooked 'soul food' she was brought up on in Philadelphia.

She takes part in the TV series Ramsay's Kitchen Nightmares, on Channel 4 on Tuesday 7 June at 9pm.

TEMPLE GRANDIN

Temple Grandin is Associate Professor of Animal Science at Colorado State University. Along with Catherine Johnson she has now written the book Animals in Translation - published by Bloomsbury, price; £16.99. The book is the culmination of Temple's life's work, drawing upon her distinguished career as an animal scientist, and her own experience of being autistic. She will be speaking at the National Autistic Society's Conference in London on 23/24 September.

The NAS autism helpline is: 0845 070 4004 (Mon - Fri 10am-4pm).

PATRICK COCKBURN

Patrick Cockburn writes on foreign affairs for The Independent. He has written his memoir, which includes his story of contracting polio in Co. Cork in 1956, during the last great polio epidemic of Western

DR. LIZZIE BURNS

Dr. Lizzie Burns is working with the Medical Research Council on its public engagement programme, using art to help entice children into science.

Her latest project is entitled 'Microscopic World'. Several hundred junior school children will invent their own micro-organisms with clay, as well as coming up with cartoons about microbes. The resulting art will be exhibited in the Discover Zone at the Cheltenham Festival of Science, which runs from 8-12 June. Tickets: 01242 227979.

She is also hosting an 'Art and the Brain' workshop at the Science Museum's Dana Centre on 30 June. Tickets are free and can be reserved on: 020 7942 4040.
